Aviation Life Vests

The Saver Vest

The ROARING FORTIES™ SAVER (Survival Aid Vest Equipped Raft) system has been design for the use by air pilots & crew as a personal marine survival system.

The SAVER survival system is modular & is made up of three parts - The VEST, a Single Seat Survival Craft & Thermal Protection jackets. Only the Vest is a CASA approved product ATSO-1C13

The ROARING FORTIES™ SAVER survival vest casing is constructed from fire resistant Probane or Nomex fabric. Reflective tape is attached to the collar and a spray hood is installed inside the collar of the vest. The spray hood helps to reduce the amount of water contact on the face from the waves and wind spray.

There are pockets to stow survival equipment such as an EPIRB, water, signaling mirror, sea-marker pack or mini-flare kit. The vest has a pocket on the upper left breast to hold an activated PLB. The bladder is created from high performance fabric from the USA. It is welded with a 6mm bar welder.

SMA 2000 Life Jacket

ROARING FORTIES™ SMA2000 series dual buoyancy inflatable life jackets are approved by Civil Aviation Safety Authority (CASA - ATSO 1C13).

There are many versions of SMA2000 aviation lifejackets. However they all operate with the same system ie with two 18g disposable CO2 cylinders. It has an oral tube, whistle & water activated light. The lifejacket has a buoyancy of 195 Newton's (44lb or 19.95kg) after 24 hours. It takes 3 seconds to right an unconscious individual to an altitude of at least 30 degrees to the vertical with the mouth & nose well clear of the water. SMA2000 has good rear & lateral support & is stable in either direction.
